

Statewide Family Network Grants: Building capacity for family-run organizations

Report from a Survey of Statewide Family Networks
February 2014

The Family-Run Executive Director Leadership Association (FREDLA)

Statewide Family Networks

Initiated in 1993, Statewide Family Networks (SFN) are one of SAMHSA's infrastructure grant programs that help family-run organizations build a solid foundation for delivering and sustaining effective mental health services. SFNs build on the work of SAMHSA's Child, Adolescent and Family Branch and the Children's Mental Health Initiative (CMHI), which focuses on developing systems of care across the nation for children, youth and young adults with serious mental health challenges and their families.

Statewide Family Network grantees are part of a larger movement supported by the Affordable Care Act, which aims to coordinate and manage the full spectrum of health care needs of patients. The SFN promotes family-driven care, which means that families have a primary decision making role in the care of their own children as well as the policies and procedures governing care for all children with serious emotional disturbances in their community. SFN grantees provide individual peer support, information and assistance, support groups, trainings, and services to families caring for children with mental health needs. Responses from 31 currently funded or previously funded SFNs convey several critical points:

- Statewide Family Networks have been around for a long time:

More than 20 years	10	6-10 years	1
11- 20 years	16	5 years or less	5
- In the last fiscal year, Statewide Family Networks supported or trained over 109,000 families and professionals.
- Total budgets for the 31 Statewide Family Networks are approximately 27.3 million dollars.
 - 8 Statewide Family Networks have budgets from 1-4 million dollars
 - 19 Statewide Family Networks have budgets ranging from $100,00 - $999,999 with an average budget of $536,420.
 - 4 Statewide Family Networks have budgets less than $70,000 and rely solely on SFN grants for funding
- Statewide Family Networks employed 413 family members in the 31 organizations
- SFNs leveraged federal dollars in multiple ways by: states matching funds to support programs; attracting private foundation dollars; and launching new programs that are then sustained through other funding sources.

- SFNs emphasized that there were many intangible benefits to being a SFN and that it gave the organization credibility with their own state agencies, as well as a connection to SFNs in other states and to SAMHSA.
- SFNs provided the training and opportunities for families to ensure that the voices of families caring for a child with mental health needs are heard at all levels of the system.
- Several SFN grantees specifically focus on the needs of ethnic minorities, geographically remote areas and military families.
- Statewide Family Networks provide valuable services:

The Federation of Families for Children's Mental Health ~ Colorado Chapter (Colorado Federation) is unique. We are a family-driven and family-run non-profit organization that provides for the "Family Voice" in Colorado's behavioral health care system through advocacy, leadership, technical assistance, and collaboration. We help families of children with mental health issues maneuver through the complicated behavioral health care system in Colorado by providing education, support, advocacy, and promotion of mental health needs of children and families. This is accomplished through a System of Care process, which builds on individual and community strengths, and makes the most of existing resources to help children and their families achieve better outcomes. Over the last two years we've accomplished the following: 1. We have strengthened the role of the Colorado Federation as the lead family-driven organization advocating for Family Driven Care for all Colorado families with children and youth with serious emotional disturbance and co-occurring mental health and substance abuse disorders. 2. We've expanded and secured a valued place for all individual and organizational family and youth representatives at policymaking tables, as family advocates, peer mentors and as family members and caregivers driving their child's individualized plans. 3. We've designed and developed a tool kit to be used by family and youth organizations to increase business management and leadership skills in order to address organizational expanding and other complex demands throughout the state of Colorado.

Delaware Family Voices has made inroads in less than two years for families of children with SED. We have a dedicated monthly call for parents to call in and ask questions either about their Medicaid coverage for their children or about issues they are having with our state's child mental health system. We have held one conference so far and Senator Coons asked to partner with us and to be a keynote speaker. We also had our secretary of health and Lt. Governor speak at the conference. We are the only conference addressing the needs of families with children with SED. We had over 200 attend. This was both families and providers. The need is there. We have partnered and discussed much needed policy change on various issues with state service systems and their protocol for accepting applications. It has been a big issue in our state. We have been able to establish ourselves as a partner for both the family and with the state and various providers. Our reputation is fairness, think outside the box and a model of parent leadership.

Total Family Care Coalition (TFCC) provides a comfortable and safe environment for family members to learn about the System of Care and become engaged at the level of their own comfort while also addressing their specific family needs. TFCC staff provides numerous outreach activities to increase mental health awareness while also engaging family members and youth participation in ongoing system of care activities. In fall 2013, TFCC participated in outreach efforts resulting in 28 parents indicating interest in learning more about mental health and working to support the System of Care. The community events included presentations to church groups on mental health stigma and how to access mental health resources and providing information at health fairs and other community events. TFCC participated in a program geared to support youth remaining in school with over 300 students in attendance and 14 indicated interest in further involvement with mental health advocacy activities. TFCC has collaborated with DC Department of Behavioral Health, Court Social Services, Department of Youth Rehabilitation Services, Child and Family Services Agency, DC Public Schools and other community organizations to develop a group for families with a child currently or previously placed in a psychiatric residential treatment facility (PRTF). This group provides support, information, and community resources to assist in the successful transition of a youth back to his/her home and community. The first Family Talk meeting was held in September, 2013 with participation by parents of youth in PRTF, family organizations, DC child serving agencies and community organizations. Meetings are scheduled bi-monthly. TFCC held a Family Conference in September 2013 with 70 families, youth and children in attendance. City Council member Tommy Wells, DBH Director Stephen Baron and the DBH Director of Child and Family services, Marie Morilus-Black participated. The focus was on raising awareness of the resources available in the community. In addition, there was a youth track to discuss mental health and what prevents youth from accessing mental health services. This conference served as a preparation for family and youth to participate in the DC Community Conversation on Mental Health to be hosted by Mayor Gray on October 12, 2013.

It has connected Florida families with critical information and support, enhanced the leadership and advocacy capacity of those it reached, expanded the ranks of stakeholders working in concert to improve the mental health system of care and increased attention to the behavioral health needs of children, youth and young adults. Thanks to The Family Café's standing as a trusted source of information among families, state agencies and other stakeholders in Florida, the organization has been able to reach hundreds of families and provide them with access to resources and information. By leveraging the uniquely powerful platform of its statewide annual event, The Annual Family Café, the organization has been able to infuse mental health into the larger conversation about child health and disability in Florida. It has also successfully engaged youth in discussions of the particular challenges surrounding mental health for the transition age population, both through internal efforts, such as the Youth Track and The Annual Family Café and Florida Youth Council activities including the Annual Youth Summit, and through partnerships with other organizations like MYLIFE and with various state agencies. Finally, the program has increased awareness and leadership capacity in Florida through its social media efforts, its provision of leadership and advocacy training, and through its network of Change Agent Network volunteers throughout the state. The Family Café looks forward building upon its success and deepening the positive impact the Statewide Family Network program has had for children with behavioral health needs and their families in Florida.

Idaho Federation of Families for Children's Mental Health (IFFCMH) is recognized throughout the state as the primary advocate for children's mental health. Through our statewide "peer" network of parents, and our Youth MOVE project, hundreds of families and kids have been empowered to become stronger, better informed advocates for themselves and their families at individual and system levels. Language IFFCMH advocated for has now been added to pending legislation establishing children's mental health committees in all seven regions of the state, a significant step toward the voice of children's mental health being heard. IFFCMH use of technology and social media to connect and provide educational opportunities to families is expanding as webinars and interactive video programs are being made available statewide, as well as monthly support and education groups for parents and youth in all regions. Our recent suicide awareness Bowl a Thon brought over 150 kids together for a fun and educational experience. The stigma associated with mental illness is an on-going battle for families and IFFCMH is leading this fight through community education and awareness programs and projects. Through personal support offered by parents "who are now or have been there", parents find it easier to relate to our family support specialists, and obtain the help they need navigating a vast and confusing system while learning more about how the system operates and how they can help others through personal involvement and system advocacy.

Iowa Federation of Families for Children's Mental Health is a statewide family advocacy organization focusing on the behavioral, emotional, mental and social health of all children in Iowa. Iowa Federation of Families for Children's Mental Health offers guidance, resources, and direct support to parents, guardians and caregivers of children/adolescents, as well as to adolescents themselves, who may experience social, emotional, behavioral, learning differences or mental health needs. We believe families have a direct role in shaping the system that serves them. We help families gain the confidence they need to become more effective advocates for services and supports that are based on family strengths, as well as respect for cultural values and diversity. Iowa Federation staff and volunteers are themselves parents of children/adolescents who experience social, emotional, behavioral, or mental health needs. We advocate for programs, treatment, and policies that enable families to live in their communities in an environment of stability and respect. Iowa Federation of Families staff and volunteers can: ⇒ Coach families in developing advocacy and negotiation skills ⇒ Assist families in identifying their needs ⇒ Provide parents and youth with information on medication, diagnosis and services ⇒ Empower families to understand and exercise their rights ⇒ Educate community organizations and schools. We understand the struggles & barriers that parents face when accessing services and supports for their children in schools, the "system", and in their own communities because we, too, have children with unique needs. We understand the importance of being able to talk to a non-judgmental person who understands the challenges we face at home, with schools and in the community. We believe children with behavioral, emotional, mental, and/or social challenges and their families can be successful! We believe that families /caregivers are the experts on their children's needs and should be the main decision-makers for their children. These 50+ parents and youth consult with Keys staff to develop the Kids for Keeps training curriculum for parents statewide. They work to advise on the design of training, provide personal experiences to inform the content of the curriculum and review products to assure they respect the culture and values of Kansas families statewide with meaningful and usable information to help them manage children with serious emotional, behavior disorders. This curriculum and the Targeted Parent Assistance model have research demonstrated outcomes that keep children/adolescents home.

With the American Institutes for Research, Kansas Keys for Networking completed a multi-year research study with randomized control groups that demonstrated the effect of the Keys developed Targeted Parent Assistance (TPA) program on 3000 justice involved youth returning home from incarceration in state-operated facilities. The study demonstrated the effectiveness of parent to parent, youth to youth support, information, and training: 96% of youth whose parents participated in the TPA program secured and maintained enrollment in insurance so they could pay for post release substance abuse and/or mental health services. 86% of youth remained home with family after release compared to 80% of a matched group of 850 youth whose parents had no contact with Keys. In addition, Keys, in partnership with the Nebraska Federation of Families for Children's Mental Health, is replicating Targeted Parent Assistance with the six regional family - run organizations operating throughout Nebraska. In addition, Keys, through a partnership with Kansas Kids @Gear Up and the Kansas Department of Corrections/Juvenile Services operates iGRAD, a program to assist youth in state custody graduate from high school and pursue post-secondary educational opportunities funded by Gear UP. Maine Parent Federation's primary focus is on providing support to families across the state. Until recently, all support was in the way of information, referral, training and systemic activities. Based on feedback from families, we started a new program called Family Support Navigators. This program is a shared activity under several of our projects, including the Statewide Family Network grant. The majority of our requests for a navigator come from parents of children with behavioral health needs. Individuals who are trained as family support parents are provided additional training to become Family Support Navigators (FSN). When a request is received for assistance, a FSN is matched with the family based on experience and location. The Family Support Navigator meets with the family to help them develop a family support plan of what help they need. From there they develop a plan to address the needs. Sometimes, the support is only emotional. They may have the skills and knowledge they need to wade through the maze of services but they need someone to check in with for moral support. Sometimes they need help at meetings, interviewing and selecting a provider, sorting through the services to determine what they need or support at an educational meeting. The intent of the program is to help the family through the rough spots and help them gain the skills and knowledge to effectively navigate the systems by themselves in the future. This will be done through educational opportunities and modeling. Without the SFN project funding, the family support navigator program will be in jeopardy of ending as will all the support we provide to families under the SFN project.

The Parent/Professional Advocacy League has trained, supported and provided technical assistance to both families whose children have mental health needs and those who support them. Parent/Professional Advocacy League (PPAL) has provided training to more than 300 family support specialists who in turn have helped more than 9,000 families access services and gain skills to help their children. PPAL has partnered with the juvenile justice system to provide information and assistance to families who turn to the court to gain services. This new program has been so successful that many juvenile judges have requested it be expanded. As Massachusetts moves to provide support to primary care doctors so they can provide behavioral health services, PPAL has surveyed families and helped develop training and tools to make that care more effective. Last, through its programs for youth, we have helped youth speak at grand rounds, schools and conferences so that they can use their own experiences to improve care.

As a leadership team member of our state's System of Care initiative, Safe Schools Healthy Students Initiative, and Children's Behavioral Health Collaborative, the GSFFCMH provides family perspective and experience based expertise in all efforts to transform our children's behavioral health system into one that is streamlined, accountable, and effective and is based in an understanding of the realities our youth and families deal with daily. Families and youth supported by the GSFFCMH understand better than anyone which supports and services are most cost and outcome effective and are a vital force in transformation efforts. As a partner in New Jersey's Division of Children's System of Care (DCSOC), Mercer County Family Support Organization provides support, education, and advocacy for families whose children have emotional, behavioral, or mental health challenges. We provide one-to-one peer support to caregivers whose children are engaged with care management, run a warm line for referrals and resources, provide support groups and workshops to the community, run a youth advocacy group and provide advocacy at the community level in schools, stakeholders' meetings, juvenile justice systems, and child welfare. As a member of the New Jersey Alliance of Family Support Organizations, we provide advocacy at policy levels. Through individual advocacy, thousands of children are receiving appropriate services in schools, in juvenile justice programs, in child welfare, and in the DCSOC. Through stakeholders meetings, we advocate for families based on their needs which have included: working with Disability Rights NJ to insure translation of documents and meetings when families are engaged with Special Education teams, insuring a child's challenges are considered when engaged with youth sexual offender programs through attention to their Individual Education Plans, connecting schools with appropriate resources i.e. the need for Traumatic Loss Services and trauma intervention in Trenton as a result of the homicide rate which has escalated this past year. The Leadership Academy is another program which helps us develop the leadership and advocacy skills of family members and youth so advocacy can be expanded in our community. Mercer County Family Support insures that the family voice is heard so systems can be "family friendly" and better serve their community.

Families Together in New York State works at the State level with policy makers to provide the family voice in the work they do that will affect our families. As we shift to Medicaid Managed Care, we participated in the design and implementation of our framework that will ultimately save money as services like Family Support and Respite are included in the plan. Our input into the development was especially valuable as we can speak with authority about what families need and want that will keep our children out of expensive hospitalizations, emergency rooms and residential facilities. Ensuring that these types of services are included in the Essential Benefits Packages of the Exchange under ACA will also result in significant savings and better outcomes. We are conducting trainings and credentials for our workforce for these types of services so they can be delivered with quality and with good outcome measures.

North Dakota Federation of Families for Children's Mental Health (NDFFCMH)

Statewide Family Network program has provided parent to parent support to families of children and youth with emotional, behavioral, and mental health disorders. The Parent to Parent support has helped families access needed services for their children and youth. Parents have become empowered to engage with service providers and have become advocates for their children as well as advocating for a more responsive system. NDFFCMH Statewide Family Network program assisted children and youth with emotional, behavioral and mental health disorders and their family members throughout North Dakota by working with policy makers and service providers to improve services for children and youth with emotional, behavioral and mental disorders and their families. Families worked on the expansion of services to children with Autism Spectrum Disorders. Youth planned and led a youth leadership conference for youth that promoted advocacy skills to transitional age youth. Families are working with policymakers by providing input regarding the mental health needs of children and youth in ND to the ND Interim Legislative Committee studying behavioral health. NDFFCMH Statewide Family Network ensured that children, youth and families are the catalyst for transformation of mental health and related systems in North Dakota by strengthening coalitions among children, youth and family members and between children, youth and family members, policymakers and service providers by recognizing that children, youth and family members are the best and most effective change agents.

Leveraging SFN funds: With the SFN, Oregon Family Support Network has been able to secure additional funding for special projects which OFSN would not be able to pursue otherwise. As an example, OFSN received additional funding from the state to pursue Board Development activities, including the development of a 3 year Strategic Plan, which the organization had not done in many years. Additionally, the state provided some additional funding to support a significant organizational change process as the result of a small grant we received from State Family Consumer Networks. The total additional funding that was leveraged was equal to 50% of the overall costs. OFSN would not have been able to complete these projects without support of the SFN funds.

The SFN grant program has enabled the Parent Support Network of Rhode Island to develop, and implement our Peer Mentor Program that provides a toll free helpline for families in need of support, information, and referral. This is always staffed by another parent who has lived experience raising a child with serious mental health challenges. Families calling in have access to emotional support, resources, and help with navigating the complexity of service systems for their child (Education, Mental Health, Juvenile Justice, Child Welfare, Social Services, Health etc.) We also train volunteers who are also parents interested in helping other parents which serves to strengthen the capacity of our Statewide Family Network. This program is sometimes the only life line for families who are often very isolated due to the needs of their child/youth. We also host ongoing social events that bring hundreds of children and their families together which builds a natural support community that families can continue to rely on for both giving and receiving support. Parent Support Network has successfully developed and implemented several training curriculums including peer to peer support and family/youth leadership. This has served to strengthen our programs internally and also continues to have a significant impact on how services, supports, policies and practices are designed and delivered within a System of Care context. The impact on our state has been the knowledgeable and empowered parents and young adults with lived experience who are participating on local and state level policy and decision making bodies that directly impact the children's behavioral health population.

Utah Allies with Families provides a 6-week wellness education program, Operation Families Together. OFT has 4 separate programs: From Hope to Recovery for parents and caregivers; Sibshops for siblings; Kid Power for the identified child; and, Childcare for the real young children. The FHTR program provides information on mental health diagnoses, wellness ideas for helping with the impact on the family, and support for individual needs. This program has helped families become better partners in their children's care and helped to reduce stigma with their informal supports and community. Last year Allies provided this program to 250 families and youth. In addition, training was provided regarding the impact of mental illness on the family to 200 professionals, paraprofessionals, and social work students. Allies has participated with a coalition of family run organizations to build a peer-to-peer support program. We have written a curriculum to train Family Resource Facilitators and provided that training in the state for 7 years. We started 7 years ago with 13 FRFs located in the mental health centers statewide. Currently we have 42 FRFs that are located in many of the child-serving agencies, as well as some public-private partnerships. The curriculum, training, supervision and mentoring model has been accepted by Medicaid and the FRFs are able to bill Medicaid for their peer-to-peer services. Last year our FRFs provided individual services and wraparound to 1,812 families helping them to keep their kids in their own homes, and out of high cost out of home placements; in school with appropriate services to help them achieve or stay on grade level; and, out of legal trouble either with the school or juvenile justice.

Leveraging SFN funds: The SFN grant is a huge help to our capacity. Without it, we would not be able to support many of our efforts. For example, our state funding, while we greatly appreciate it, is not enough to reach and support families and youth on a statewide basis. Previous funding levels only allowed for us to reach parts of the state. In addition, we would not be able to support current staff levels without the SFN funding, which, again, greatly affects our capacity.

As a program of NAMI Virginia, the Virginia Family Network was launched in 2011 with the goal of creating a statewide network of families committed to providing opportunities that support, educate, and empower other families with children and youth with mental health needs while also promoting family driven and youth guided policy throughout the child serving systems. The initiative is designed to “meet the family where they are” through activities such as providing support groups, training, resources, and mentorship from other families with children and youth with mental health needs. Compared to other states, Virginia has not had a strong statewide network for families. As a result, we have essentially had to build our network from scratch, including recruiting parents, building parent support groups, developing curricula and trainings and hiring staff. We are incredibly proud of how far we have come in a short period of time. Some of our accomplishments include: -Hosting a statewide conference for families, youth, and professionals on family driven and youth guided policy. -Developing a parent leadership training and a youth leadership training. -Developing a training that teaches parents skills related to advocating for their child. -Launching a Statewide Youth Network, this includes recruiting and training young adults with personal experience to lead youth groups in their communities. We have one group thus far. -Recruiting a cadre of parent leaders who help with a number of initiatives, including providing individual parent support, providing feedback on policy issues, training other families, serving as parent representatives on local committees, and leading parent support groups.

Wisconsin Family Ties has been successful at keeping kids at home and in school. In the past two years, WFT reversed school suspensions and expulsions, reunited families separated by out-of-home placements of their child/children, helped families navigate complex service systems and connect with needed services/providers, found housing for homeless families and helped them furnish their new homes, supported families through child protective services investigations and various court proceedings, and collaborated with juvenile corrections to implement trauma-informed care at the state's juvenile corrections facilities and pilot the use of parent peer support with families of incarcerated youth. In our most recent evaluation survey, families reported the following improvements after receiving services from WFT • 100% felt more capable of dealing with the various systems serving their child • 84% felt more able to cope with their family situation • 97% reported having more information regarding their child's diagnosis, treatment options and available community programs • 86% felt more hopeful about the future • 84% believe WFT helped them become better advocates for their children • 88% reported they now know the steps to take when they are concerned about the services their children are or are not receiving • 97% feel they now have somewhere to turn when they need information & support. WFT was instrumental in several advances for children's mental health. A six-year advocacy effort culminated in Wisconsin's first-ever legislation regulating the use of seclusion and restraint in public schools. We were the sole organization that got the state to establish the Office of Children's Mental Health; previously, there was no organizational unit with such a focus. WFT was instrumental in getting the state to expand Coordinated Services Teams, the state's children's wraparound initiative, to all 72 counties and 11 tribes. Finally, we played a key role in influencing state budget initiatives related to mental health, which resulted in an unprecedented $29 million increase in mental health funding during the 2013-15 biennium. WFT also continued to train families and child-serving professionals on effective ways to work with children who have behavioral challenges. We developed a curriculum, "Trauma-free Crisis Intervention," and are teaching people throughout the state a new way to work with kids without using punitive consequences or going hands-on. We also developed a conceptual framework for engaging parents that is helping schools connect with families that have historically been hard to reach.

ABOUT FREDLA
